Market Review

Risk assets sold off sharply in February as the COVID-19 outbreak spread beyond China, disrupting global supply chains and impacting economic activity. Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell said in a statement that COVID-19 posed “evolving risks” to the US economy and that the Fed was “prepared to act as needed”. Against this backdrop, US Treasuries rallied on the back of a flight to safe haven assets and the 10-year and 30-year yields declined sharply.

Asian central banks including Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines responded swiftly and eased key policy rates on rising downside growth risks. In China, policymakers have responded with measures includes RRR cut, liquidity injection as well as higher fiscal spending. Fiscal policy in Asia is also likely to be loosened to buffer the short term negative economic impact, as evidenced by the budget announcements in Singapore and Hong Kong.

Amidst this backdrop, Asian local currency bonds, as represented by the Markit iBoxx ALBI index, had a positive month in local currency terms, with India and Thailand leading gains. The index however declined 0.12% in USD terms as Asian currencies broadly weakened against the USD. Among the Asian currencies, the IDR, MYR and SGD weakened the most against the USD.

Investment Strategy

Looking ahead, the economic impact of a virus outbreak such as COVID-19 would depend on how long it takes to bring the virus under control, and policy responses globally. There are typically three stages surrounding adverse economic shocks – an initial period of uncertainty, followed by a period of stabilisation and thereafter, a period of sharp market rebound. We share the view the global economic impact of the coronavirus outbreak will be felt most deeply in the first half of this year, followed by a normalisation of business activities, and a rebound in the second half.

Within Asia, policy responses to date have been strong and swift. Asian policymakers have focused on ensuring there is adequate liquidity to avoid stress and in maintaining the flow of credit, particularly to the SMEs. While we have seen some preemptive monetary easing in Asia (in the likes of Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia), fiscal policy will also play a prominent role, especially for nations with the fiscal flexibility (such as Singapore, Korea and China). Core inflation is likely to remain benign, reflecting weak domestic demand. Supply factors may result in higher food prices but this is likely to be transitory.
